ABSTRACT

Information is presented on costs at U.S. educational institutions for 1980-81 to assist foreign students in financial planning. For approximately 4,200 institutions listed alphabetically within each state, monthly maintenance rates (MMR) are presented for each institution. The MMR covers room, board, incidentals, and makes no distinction between on-campus and off-campus living. For approximately 1,000 institutions, information is presented on tuition and fees, the kind of calendar used, the academic periods, and the preferred reporting date, and examination period ending date. It is suggested that the following additional expenses and allowances should also be considered by foreign students: settling-in allowance, books, accident and health insurance, additional equipment, vacation periods, field trips, thesis/dissertation and related research costs, additional costs for accompanying dependents, expenses of maintaining an automobile, study-related or research-related travel, and senior student grantee/scholar supplement. The system for determining MMRs, based on the Bureau of Labor Statistics' annual review of family budgets in 40 urban and five nonmetropolitan areas, is described. (SW)

INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION

HE 013 391

The Institute of International Education was founded over half a century ago to promote peace and understanding through education and cultural exchanges. At present it is the largest not-for-profit organization in this field.

The Institute fulfills its mission through its service to sponsors—foundations, corporations, governmental agencies, and international organizations—and through its services to educational institutions and the general public. Services to its sponsors are self-supporting; services to educational institutions and the general public are made possible through contributions from individuals, foundations, and corporations.

Among the services made possible through contributions are information and counseling, student hospitality programs, a research and reference library, information service, and the publications relating to the field of international education. Contributions to the institute are tax deductible.

INTRODUCTION

This book continues the IIE series previously entitled "Living Costs, Tuition and Fee Charges, and Monthly Maintenance Allowance at American Institutions." It incorporates a new approach to determining monthly maintenance rates (MMRs) for foreign students at U.S. colleges and universities which was first introduced in the 1979/80 edition.

Background

Since the 1950s, the Institute of International Education, under contract to the U.S. government, has been producing an annual listing of selected U.S. colleges and universities which included their calendars, tuition, fees, and suggested monthly maintenance rates. Originally designed primarily to determine costs on individual U.S. campuses and to set monthly maintenance allowances for students in IIE-administered programs, this book was based on annual surveys of the colleges and universities. Over the years, others began to rely on the rates derived from these surveys, and the book came to be used as a general information document both by overseas counseling centers and by organizations sponsoring foreign student programs.

With the wider use of this publication, the survey method for the collection of all data came under question. While the survey method provided the best source of current information on college calendars, tuition, and fees, it did not provide a reliable, consistent source of data for monthly maintenance rates. In fact, due primarily to the varying perspectives of campus reporting officials as well as their differing degrees of experience and sophistication, the method produced widely varying figures.

After considering a number of alternative systems, IIE presented a new system for the determination of MMRs based upon the Bureau of Labor Statistics' (BLS) annual review of family budgets in 40 urban and 5 non-metropolitan areas within the United States to a special Advisory Committee. The BLS budgets are established on the basis of the purchase, within each of the areas, of a complex grouping of goods and services.

After discussing the IIE proposal in some detail, the committee agreed on the adoption of the BLS-based system. The committee concluded that the consistent and objective BLS basis for computing maintenance rates was preferable to one that might lend itself to arbitrary and subjective computation; that a fair and adequate maintenance allowance should be based on the BLS intermediate-level family costs rather than on high-level or low-level costs; that there were considerable advantages to a system which lends itself to annual updating based on reliable data for all institutions throughout the U.S.; that it was appropriate to use the BLS single-adult consumption figure which represents 37% of the consumption of the American family-of-four at the intermediate level; and that the adjusted BLS rate should be factored upward both to reflect inflation and special foreign-student needs.

The BLS-Based System

The system for determining Monthly Maintenance Rates (MMRs) is based on the following:

1. Location: Each U.S. institution included in this list has been located within its appropriate BLS area. In those cases where an institution is located in a metropolitan area for which the BLS does not provide specific rates, then, following the BLS practice, the national metropolitan average has been used. In those cases where an institution is located in a regional non-metropolitan area, then the rate for that non-metropolitan area has been assigned.

2. Cost Components: A base amount on which the MMR for each BLS area is determined is calculated from the following BLS intermediate level figures:

    a. Food: The total consumption for food is used as published in the BLS data.

    b. Housing: The BLS figure for renting rather than home ownership is used; additionally, the separate allocation for "house furnishings and operations" is included to cover items which foreign students must acquire and cannot, as nonresidents, be expected to own.

    c. Transportation: The "public transportation" component is included rather than the "automobile owners" figure, which is slightly higher. Even though some foreign students eventually find it necessary to own automobiles, most do not.

d. Other Components: The published figures for clothing, personal care, medical care, and other family consumption are included. However, the "other items" component is excluded because it clearly applies to on-the-job and other needs not normally associated with foreign students.

3. Adjustments to the Base Amount:

   a. Single adult adjustment: The base amount, calculated for a family of four, is adjusted following BLS guidelines for a single adult under 35 years of age, resulting in a base figure equal to 37% of the family budget.

   b. Inflation adjustment: The annual base figures derived from the foregoing are further adjusted for inflation because BLS statistics are published in the spring on actual costs as of the prior autumn, whereas foreign students' maintenance rates forecast costs for the academic year ahead.

   c. Special foreign student adjustment: It is generally accepted that a foreign student, as compared to a single American resident under 35 years of age, encounters additional expenses because of his relatively short-term residence in a society whose ways are unfamiliar to him. To account for these additional expenses, an additional 5% is added to the base figure.

Modifications Incorporated in the 1980/81 Edition

Several modifications have been made in this edition of "Costs at U.S. Educational Institutions" which may affect the relative differences between various institutions' MMR's when compared to last year's edition.

First, following the BLS practice, IIE has adopted changes in the classification of cities incorporated in Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas, Revised edition, 1975, published by the U.S. Office of Management and Budget. Accordingly, some institutions which were classified as "Non-Metropolitan" under the BLS system last year are now considered "Metropolitan" and may enjoy an increase in their MMR.

Second, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reduced the number of SMSA's surveyed in the past year by fifteen. BLS incorporated these 15 SMSA's into its "Urban U.S." category. IIE found that this change would result in some very small increases in the MMR's for a number of institutions. Accordingly, IIE calculated the average increase for surveyed SMSA's in each U.S. region and applied that increase to last year's base figure for the omitted SMSAs.

Third, in the first year of the new system for determining MMR's, a flat 10% was added to the base figure for inflation. This year, in order to provide MMRs which were more sensitive to the inflation rates in different parts of the country, IIE used the actual inflation rates indicated by BLS data. Accordingly, IIE calculated the actual percentage increase indicated by BLS data between the autumn, 1978 and autumn, 1979 and applied that increase to the 1979 base figure. The MMR's for 1979/80 and 1980/81 and the net percentage increase in the MMR for each BLS area is listed in the table on page vi.

Using this Book

Many different persons and organizations should find this publication useful. Organizational sponsors will have reliable information for all parts of the country; foreign governments, students and their counselors overseas will have the kind of specific information that is essential for realistic financial planning; and Foreign Student Advisers will no doubt welcome the information--for publication in catalogs and inclusion in visa certificates--which eliminates the need for a local estimate of costs.

There are two types of data in this book. The first is the Monthly Maintenance Rates (MMR) at U.S. institutions. The list begins on page 1, and proceeds alphabetically by institution within state; the "state" column uses the standard two-letter abbreviation of the U.S. Postal Service. The MMR covers room, board, incidentals, and makes no distinction between on- and off-campus living. Books, insurance, and other costs are additional and are covered below.

The second type of data is contained in the list of costs at about 1,000 institutions which begins on page 99 . In addition to the MMR contained in the first list, it gives for each school the tuition and fees, the kind of calendar used, the academic periods, and the preferred reporting date and examination period ending date. This list, based on institutions at which IIE placements are made, adds to the usefulness of the basic MMR list by giving complete cost and other information at the institutions where a large percentage of the foreign students in the U.S. are enrolled. States are listed alphabetically, as are institutions within states. The codes used are explained on page 98.

After ascertaining the MMR, individual students and program sponsors should consider certain additional expenses and allowances. Not all of these will be found necessary in every case, but their possible effect on budgets should at least be considered. They are as follows:

- "settling-in" allowance of $300 to $500. This is more likely to apply to an older student with a more settled style of living.
- books $250 to $300 should be allowed annually.
- accident and health insurance Given the high cost of medical care in the U.S., this is an essential expenditure. Allow at least $150 to $200 annually, and perhaps as much as $500, depending on coverage required.
- additional equipment This depends very much on the field of study. Instruments for an architecture student, for example, might well come to $200 or more; a calculator for an engineering student could cost from $50 to $200. All students will want to consider purchasing a typewriter (from $150 to $300 new, or $50 to $100 used, for a manual model). If a student plans to pay someone for typing, about $30 for each semester course (five courses a semester is a full program) may be expected if there are any number of papers to be done.
- vacation periods Living expenses are covered by the basic MMR, but some persons may wish to travel, which would be an additional expense.
- field trips These may be required in certain areas of study, such as geology or archaeology. Travel is a major extra expense.

. thesis/dissertation and related research costs An unavoidable expense for doctoral candidates, and one that may apply to a lesser extent to master's candidates. Costs include typing and reproduction, and sometimes binding. Approximately $250 to $400.

. additional costs for accompanying dependents These will be found in a table on page x. Figures are taken from BLS data.

. expenses of maintaining an automobile It is impossible to generalize about this except to say that the costs of purchase, maintenance, and insurance are high. Foreign students and scholars should usually avoid automobile ownership unless there is no alternative means of local transportation.

. study- or research-related travel In addition to field trips, noted above, students may sometimes find it necessary to travel in order to complete the research for a paper or thesis.

Senior Student Grantee/Scholar Supplement

There is a final category of additional expense which should be considered separately from the foregoing, i.e., the across-the-board percentage increment that sponsors may wish to add to the basic MMR for their senior student grantees or scholars who have been accustomed for some time to a more or less comfortable level of expenditure. This percentage could range up to 47%. The figure given represents the difference between the national BLS average of an "intermediate" and a "higher" budget.

Suggested Increases in the Monthly Maintenance Rate (MMR) for dependent allowances *

If the Grantee is accompanied by:	Multiply the MMR by:	EXAMPLE if the MMR is $470.
Spouse only	1.35	$ 635.00
Spouse and one child	1.68	790.00
Spouse and two children	2.05	965.00
Spouse and three children	2.54	1,195.00
Spouse and four or more children	2.89	1,360.00

* These allowances are based on the "Revised Equivalence Scale" contained in BLS Bulletin #1570-2.

TUITION, FEES, AND ACADEMIC CALENDARS

The charges and rates reported in this section are generally for the 1980-81 academic year. If current year costs were unavailable at press time, prior year rates were included.

Following is an explanation of each column:

Column 1 - CODE	These are unique ID numbers based on the National Research Council coding system.
Column 3 - CAL	School Calendar. S-Semester; Q-Quarter; T-Trimester; 4-"4-1-4", O-Other.
Column 4 - PER	Academic Period. AY-Academic Year; S1-First Summer Session; etc.
Column 5 - DATES	Preferred reporting date and Exam period ending date for the academic period indicated.
Column 6 - TUITION & FEES	In some cases, tuition charges include fees. Since breakdown of the two charges was not always provided, it was not indicated as such.
Column 7 - MMR	The monthly maintenance rate is fully explained in the introduction.

NOTES: * The rates published in this book are calculated on the formula explained in the introduction. However, certain sponsors of IIE-administered programs have established overall limits on the Monthly Maintenance Rate. During the 1980/81 academic year, the maximum MMR for U.S. Government supported academic grantees is $550.

* Rates in this book do not include book allowances paid directly to grantees as authorized by various sponsors.

CODE SYMBOLS

UG - Undergraduate student
G - Graduate student

AV - Average of rates for different academic levels
CR - Per Credit
CO - Per Course
E - Estimated
F - Fees included
NT - No tuition charges
R - Includes room and board
